HOW SEWARD PAID FOR HIS CLOTHES.

When William H. Seward left home o go to Union college, like many anther country boy, he felt ashamed of his rough homespun clothes, and the hought of them made him so uneasy hat he soon ran into debt with the most fashionable tailor of the place. The senior year in the college began, but the tailor had not been paid. Dr. carded as an unnecessary account, and his son could not pay the debt while reince. The incident became so disagree-make himself financially independent, him. On the first day of 1819 he started secretly for Georgia, hoping to secure a position as teacher of an academy. By the time he was within 30 or 40 miles of the end of his journey, his purse was almost empty, and he was compelled to proceed afoot. His strength and resources were all but exhausted when he came upon a log cabin in the woods, which was fortunately occupied by a family that had recently moved rom Auburn, N. Y. The young stranger received a hearty welcome, and was nformed that the sought-for academy was in a settlement close by, and that his rural host was a trustee. On the following day the trustees met and examined the applicant, who then withdrew while his case was under discusion. His position was a serious one. With only 18 pence in my pocket, a thousand miles from home, my little wardrobe left 20 miles behind," said Seward in later life, where I was to ro? What could I do?" Fortune was with him. He was soon rformed that his application had been accepted, and that his salary as head of the academy would be $800 a year. Seward gladly accepted. Proud of his ar pointment, he sent his father a newspaper containing an announcement of wrote to the trustees, telling them that his son had absconded from college vithout cause, bringing disgrace and John Emmeluth and was offered $100 forrow upon his too indu'gent parents, so to do. and that all who harbored him would be prosecuted to the full extent of the

This frightened no one, and it did, not cause the very independent principal-elect to alter his plans; but by the same mail came other letters. What a father's anger could not do was quickly effected by the grief of a mother and sister. Young Seward obtained permission to resign, on condition that he should stay until the arrival of a suitable successor. So after successfully opening the new academy, he started for home.

It was not until he had been for some time a practicing attorney that Seward was able to lay by a sum to pay for his youthful vanity in clothes. -Youth's Companion.

IN THE FIELD

J. W. Bip!kane, the "Roaring Bull," has experienced a change of heart and will not run for the Senate after all. Bip.kane was turned down by the Independents recently, it will be remembered but he believed that his serv.ces were needed for his country's good, so he circulated a nomination petition and dug up $25 and filed the paper with Secretary Cooper.

Now Bipikane is undoubtedly a good citizen but he is shy on knowledge of English. His Independent friends assured him that this was all right as there would be an interpreter in the Senate anyway who would translate his speeches into English, so he went ahead. But recently Bip.kane has been meditating and the other day he decided to go to Governor Dole and ask his advice on the subject.

To an Advertiser reporter he told the esult of this interview yesterday: "I am going to withdraw my nomination petition," he stated, "and give up trying for election to the legislature, Bob Wilcox and J. K. Kaulia and Kalauokalani told me when I talked of running that my lack of knowledge of English would not interfere at all with my usefulness in the legislature. But eaving for Koloa. From Koloa they today I went to Governor Dole and to, probably, to Hanalei, coming home asked his opinion about it. The Govergor told me that all proceedings in the legislature would be in the English language according to Section 44 of the Territorial Act, and he does not think that any interpreter will be provided for the convenience of the Hawailans. For this reason I will withdraw my petition as I have not acquired sufficient knowledge of the English language to make me useful in the legis-

KALAIAINA FOR DAVID.

The old Kalaiaina Society may come out for Prince David. The members of the Society are much displeased with the actions of Wilcox and his fellows in removing from the Independent ticket such of the candidates as they saw fit and replacing them with others.

One of them said yesterday to an Advertiser representative: "We do not like the way that J. K. Kaulia and Kalauokalani are carrying on. We think that they have no right to put out any of the nominees of the Independent convention as they have done. Next Tuesday the members of the Kalaiaina Society will hold a meeting. We shall write a letter to the leaders of the Home Rule party and ask them to explain their reasons and their authority for putting out the candidates who were rightly nominated at the last convention to run on the Independent ticket. Action may also be taken by the maining a student on a slender allow- Society towards endorsing Prince David as candidate for Congress and able that young Seward determined to towards pledging ourselves to support

A BET ON PARKER.

REPUBLICAN SPERKERS.

A number of the Republican speakrs went down to Laie on the afternoon train yesterday. It is understood that number of the Independent speakers are to be at Laie today and a debate may be arranged between the orators of the two parties as to the relative 26, 1900. benefits to accrue from the victory of he two parties. The Republicans who went down were: W. C. Achi, Enoch Johnson, L. L. McCandless, George R. Carter, John Kalama, Samuel Kamataia and Samuel Broad.

WAS PAELO "APPROACHED?"

It is reported, says the Independent, by a certain henchman of the Republican party that J. K. Paelo, one of the nominees of the Independent party for representative, stated publicly yesterit. Dr. Seward flew into a passion, day at Koolau that he had been approached by J. K. Kaulia, an Independent leader, to withdraw in favor of
